The University of Iowa College of Nursing seeks applicants for open rank tenure-track or tenured faculty positions to begin in academic year 2017-2018 (opportunity for Spring 2017 in some areas). As a major research university, we are well positioned to support faculty candidates who have developing or strong programs of research in our specific areas and who can effectively contribute to the teaching needs of the college. The college is committed to promoting diversity and inclusion in achieving our education, research, service and practice missions, as demonstrated through our Pillars of Diversity.

Areas of research excellence in the College of Nursing include gerontology, health systems improvement and pain, palliative care and symptom management. Emerging areas of emphasis include management of chronic conditions and health promotion in at-risk populations. Cross cutting approaches include applied genomics/omics/biomarkers, health information technology and community engagement.

Applications will be considered in all areas, with targeted recruitment priorities that align with exciting University of Iowa interdisciplinary cluster initiatives in the following areas:

- Aging Mind and Brain
- Genetics/Genomics
- Informatics

In addition, Distinguished Scholar in Advancing Science opportunities are available in Pain and Palliative Care, Health Systems, and Health Information (see College of Nursing faculty opportunities).

As a leader in nursing education, research, and practice innovations, the UI College of Nursing has received national recognition by U.S. News & World Report, ranking several of its graduate programs in the top 15 in the nation. External funding is robust, and in 2015, the college ranked 20th in the nation in NIH funding.

Education Requirements:
