The University of Iowa College of Nursing announces an exciting opportunity for a senior faculty member who has a distinguished career in research. As a major research university, we are seeking an individual to join our senior leaders in facilitating scholarship and development of the next generation of scientists in our specific areas of excellence. The Rita and David Frantz Endowed Professorship provides resources and opportunities for continued research engagement, mentorship of faculty and students, and shaping the future of health care and the profession. The college is committed to promoting diversity and inclusion in achieving our education, research, service, and practice missions, as demonstrated through our Pillars of Diversity.

The successful candidate will contribute senior leadership, active research with external funding and mentorship directed toward improving symptom management and care delivery. Candidates with well-established programs of research and a sustained record of extramural support are encouraged to apply. Established Associate Professors or Full Professors will be eligible for consideration.

The UI College of Nursing has a long-standing tradition of producing nurse leaders for practice, education and research. For more than a century, College of Nursing graduates have achieved distinguished careers as scholars, educators, practitioners, and nurse executives. The college received national recognition by U.S. News & World Report, ranking nine of its graduate programs among the best in the nation (in comparison to all public and private schools). At Iowa, we are committed to preparing future nurse leaders with the courage, creativity, and passion to use their skills and knowledge to improve the health of individuals and communities. We invite you to join our efforts to sustain and enhance excellence in academics and scholarship at Iowa.

Iowa City is consistently voted one of the best places to live in the country. It’s where small town hospitality meets big city amenities, where friendly meets adventurous. It’s a place where everyone’s welcome.
